International Space University Summer Session Program 2007 (ISU SSP07) was held at Beihang University, Beijing, China. SSP consists of Core lectures, Departmental activities, and Team Project. In Core lectures, interdisciplinary lectures were given, and I could learn much more about space. In Departmental activities, we worked for individual project given in each department we chose. As for Team Project, about 30 students in each group worked together and gave a presentation.

In addition, people from all over the world participated in SSP. I communicated with them and got much more knowledge about their culture and background. Those experience have made me notice what I should do to let people understand me and to understand people. Furthermore, communications with other people from various countries in English have improved my English skills much more than when I have been in Japan. Now that I have got many things in SSP, I cannot help but feel SSP has changed my life for sure.
